

Glenfern Valley Bushland

At the Glenfern Valley Bushland you will find many animals and plants every shape and size.

Fauna: in the Glenfern Valley Bushland you can see many animals like the rare sugar glider or even a red belly black snake and the black feral cat that lives there it's none to steel chickens and it even attacks people.

Flora: in the Glenfern Valley Bushland you will see manna gums and kangaroo spoor and even people doing voluntary work planting many seeds and de-weeding the weeds.

Feral things: in the Glenfern Valley Bushlands like the black cat, the foxes live in the black berries the black berries grow because dumping and the foxes breed more then, if you stop dumping the feral animals stop breeding and it's the indigenous things come back, so please don't dump in the Glenfern Valley Bushland.

Dumping: in 2003 tonnes of rubbish, car bodies, and garden waste everything possible was dumped there, then in around now and last year it was all cleared and restored.

So go for a walk in the Glenfern Valley Bushland and have look, and please don't dump, ask yourself, what's the use of it?
